MOBILE RADAR FOR IRAN

Teheran, Iran.- A mobile radar training unit, supplied to the Iranian Air Force under the technical cooperation program of the Baghdad Pact, is being set up at the Teheran's Doshan - Tappeh military airfield.

It will be used to train personnel of the Iranian Air Force under the supervision of a team of British Air Force advisers. The equipment is the fore-runner of an up-to-date radar warning network that will contribute to the defense of Baghdad Pact member countries.

BANK HELPS BOY

Steele, Mo.- A six-year-old boy entered a bank in Steele, stepped up to the cashier's window and said he wanted to borrow a dollar. Asked what he wanted it for, he replied:

"To buy a pair of shoes."

Bank employees took the boy to a store and bought him a pair of shoes and several pairs of socks.

A. H. S. Chapter Host to DE District Meeting

On Wednesday, Feb. 26, the Appomattox High School Distributive Education Club was host for the convention of district 5. Virginia Rash, president of the Appomattox DE Club, presided over the business portion of the meeting. Nancy Turnley, of F. C. Glass High School, offered the invocation, and Ray Stinnett, of Madison Heights, led the salute to the flag. Mr. Kenneth Christopher welcomed the students from district 5, to which Fay Moore, of P. C. Glass, responded.

After the club sponsors, Mrs. Joan Smith, Appomattox; Miss Anice Howell, E. C. Glass, and Mr. John Seal, Madison Heights, explained the contests, the business meeting was adjourned for the contests.

The contests are an outgrowth of classroom instruction and on-the-job training. The contests and winners were as follows:

Merchandise Presentation: 1st, Ann Glass, Brookville H. S.; 2nd, Pat Wade, E. C. Glass H. S.; and 3rd, Terry Phelps, Appomattox.

Window Display Judging: 1st, Kent Brent, E. C. Glass; 2nd, Thelma Mae Lee, Madison Heights; and 3rd, Clyde Nash, Appomattox.

Sales Demonstration Judging: 1st, Allison Childress, Appomattox; 2nd, Lewell May, E. C. Glass, and 3rd, Jack Coates, E. C. Glass.

Ad Layout and Copywriting: 1st, Nancy Shilling, Brookville; 2nd, Don Hudson, E. C. Glass; 3rd, David Almond, Appomattox.

Job Interview: 1st, Gene Gallagher, E. C. Glass; 2nd, Dennis Drinkard, Appomattox; 3rd, Phyllis Ewers, Madison Heights.

DE Student of the Year: 1st, Nancy Turnley, E. C. Glass; 2nd, Virginia Rash, Appomattox; 3rd, Barbara Mooney, Madison Heights.

The first place winners in each contest will represent the district in state competition during the state convention to be held March 9, 10 and 11 at the John Marshall Hotel in Richmond.

All judges for the above contests were adults in the business. Some of the judges were from Lynchburg and others were from Appomattox.

The Appomattox judges included: Miss Harriett Holley, Mr. John Grinels, Mr. Ivey Holland, Mr. Cecil Rowe, Mr. A. R. Harwood Jr. and Mr. C. C. Poe. Mr. Leroy Buckner, Area Supervisor of Distributive Education, presented the awards.

KOREANS ORDERED HOME

Seoul, Korea.- The South Korean Government has ordered 630 Korean students now in the United States to return home immediately or face "legal action."

A Ministry of Education spokesman said that of 1,100 Korean students who should have returned by the end of January, only 465 had done so.

Church's Voice

Lesson for March 9. 1958

DOES society have a conscience? We all know what we mean by a "conscienceless" individual. He is a man who does whatever occurs to him, whatever he feels like doing. He can murder his own mother and regret only that he was caught. A man without a conscience does not see things as right and wrong, only as practical and impractical. what he can get by with and what he can't. Nobody loves a conscienceless man. Nobody wants to live with him, because he is dangerous, a human rattlesnake.

If society has no conscience, then society—social groups such as whole communities or even nations—can become one vast rattlesnake. But where can society get a conscience? More important: Where can society get a conscience that is right? A faulty compass can lose a man. A faulty conscience can ruin him; and so it is with society.

How God's Voice Is Heard

The voice of conscience is the voice of God," it is sometimes said. This is true only in so far as conscience is in line with the Word of God. So if society is to have a conscience, it can only come from God's Word. But who will speak the Word to society? The mere existence of the Bible will not do it. The Bible no more teaches itself than books of mathematics do. The Church of God is expected to bring the Word of God to society; to insist that it be heard, to explain it, interpret it, to confront men with God's ideals and God's demands.

Conscience is sharpest,—that is to say, it hurts most, when there is resistance to it. In fact, the more violent the resistance, the more the stabs of conscience are hurting.

What Stifles the Voice?

As with individuals, so with the community. The voice of conscience can be stifled and smothered and finally silenced. One way to do it is the simple way: just refuse to listen. Another way is to borrow a trick from children who don't want to hear their mother asking for help in the kitchen: turn the radio higher, make such a racket nobody can be heard through it. The world around us, the ordinary ungodly world, is like an immense radio shouting to us in tones cute unlike the Word of God. If a person, or a community, listens to the world's voices more than to the "still small voice" of God, they will presently be unable to hear God at all. Put it as a plain question: Who is to tell us what is right and what is wrong? If we listen to what "everybody" says, if we count noses and see what the majority says, if we take our ideas from the world, we shall end by being no different from the world. Like the church of Sardis, we may have the name of being alive, but we shall be dead.

Words and Deeds

The church itself, let it be repeated, ought to be the world's conscience; not the other way around. Every congregation ought to be a conscience in that community. It should never surrender that right and duty. But the church must be more than a voice. Its deeds must match its words. The church calls for unity among man; but how can it do this with a straight face if itself is all torn with factions and fights? The church calls for "economic justice"; but how can it be taken seriously if it does not pay its own employees a decent wage? The church speaks for Christian education; but not convincingly when it will not support its own church colleges. The church speaks for temperance; but with what a feeble voice when its own officers set an example of drinking, and its members mostly vote wet! What church people do speaks even louder than what "the church" preaches.

Mayor's Red Cross Proclamation

Mayor C. T. Moses, Jr., has issued the following Proclamation in connection with the Red Cross Fund drive this month:

"Whereas, For 77 years the American Red Cross has been on the job, meeting human needs and converting human sympathy, kindness, and the desire to help others into practical neighborly assistance; and

"Whereas, Its primary responsibilities — services to the Armed Forces and to victims of disasters—have been assigned to the Red Cross by the United States government, to be carried out for and in the name of the American people; and

"Whereas, To these basic responsibilities, in response to community needs, has been added a broad range of other services; and

"Whereas, This nation, its government, and its people, will continue to look to the American Red Cross for all those humane, friendly services that have done so much to improve community life and to maintain the well-being of our neighbors in time of disaster and emergency; and

"Whereas, This organization is a great fellowship of good will in which all citizens are welcome, and when we join the Red Cross we identify ourselves with each individual act of mercy this great organization performs anywhere in the world, as surely as if we personally extended a helping hand; now

"Therefore, I, C. T. Moses, Jr., Mayor of the Town of Appomattox, proclaim the month of March, 1958 as Red Cross Month and do here and now urge all citizens of Appomattox to contribute generously to the 1958 Red Cross Campaign for Members and Funds through our local Red Cross Chapter, remembering that increased membership and contributions are required to keep pace with our rising population and its greater need for Red Cross services.

A BABY IS BORN

Ann Arbor, Mich.- A premature baby was born five minutes after the mother died of leukemia, according to a recent report from Ann Arbor's University Hospital.

Mrs. Stanley Knopf, 27-year-old wife of a farmer, learned she was afflicted with the fatal blood disease only a few days before her death.

Doctors delivered the baby, a girl, by caesarian section five minutes after the woman's death.

According to the report, the infant, two months premature, was in good condition.

DEATHS

MRS. WILLIAM J. TRENT

Mrs. Pearl Pankey Trent, 88, died here Sunday at 5 P. M., at her home, after a five-day illness.

Born in Appomattox County, she was the daughter of the late Peter P. and Mary Elizabeth Pamplin Pankey. She was the widow of William J. Trent. She was a member of the Liberty Baptist Church.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Mildred T. Burkey and Miss Mary V. Trent, both of Appomattox, and Mrs. Elizabeth T. Fox, Capron; and one son, William J. Trent, Jr., Appomattox.

Funeral services were conducted Tuesday at 11 A. M., at Robinson Funeral Chapel, by the Rev. H. Frederick Jones. Burial was in the family cemetery in Appomattox County. Pallbearers were John Elwood Fox Jr., Trent Fox, Jack Burkey, Robert Burkey, W. M. Rothgeb and John A. Mapp Jr.

RUPERT GARRETT

Rupert Garrett, 48, of Pamplin, died unexpectedly Tuesday in Norfolk. Born in Charlotte County Nov. 9, 1909, he was the son of the late William Green Garrett and Gordon Ressell Garrett, of Pamplin, who survives him. He was a veteran of World War II. Also surviving are a sister, Mrs. J. L. Blackwell, Jr., of Pamplin, and two brothers, Kermit Garrett, of Lynchburg, and Divelo Garrett, of Pamplin.

Funeral services were held at 2 P. M. Sunday from the Evergreen Baptist Church by the Revs. J. Elmer Cerene and Harold Anderson. The church choir sang. Interment was in the church cemetery. Pallbearers were J. T. Maynard, Leonard, Sandy and James Garrett, and J. W. Padgett, Lawrence Roach and Frank Cumby.

C. L. TURNES, JR.

Charles Lewis Turnes, Jr., 30, of Baltimore, died there early Friday.

Born in Appomattox County Sept. 25, 1927, he was the son of Charles Lewis and Mary Nunley Turnes, who survive him. He is also survived by his wife, Kathleen Harding Turnes, and two children, Victoira Kay and David Lewis Turnes, all of Baltimore, and three sisters, Mrs. Mildred Kraatz, Baltimore; Mrs. Herbert Dunn, Appomattox, and Mrs. George Cardwell, Concord.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 P. M. Tuesday at New Hope Baptist Church, by the Rev. Charles Addington and Hugh Bumgardner. Burial was in the family cemetery in this county. Pallbearers were Robert Campbell, Henry Campbell, Emmitt Harris, Curtis Bingham, Robert Bingham and Walter Bajhowski.

NEW BOOK IN THE COUNTY LIBRARY

Maggie - Now, by Betty Smith.

This is the story of Maggie - Now, who grew up with the green century among the immigrant Irish and Germans of Brooklyn. Maggie-Now was one of the givers of the world; and inevitably she attracted leaners as a post attracts ivy. The story begins in Ireland with Patrick Dennis Moore, who was to become the father of Maggie-Now. Patrick was very much in love with the prettiest girl in the village, Margaret Rose, but could not marry her because his dislike for work and his like for freedom was too great. He fled Ireland and came to Brooklyn. He married his boss's daughter. Maggie-Now was born and sixteen years later, her brother, Danny was born, and Mary died. It was left to Maggie-Now to be mother to her baby brother, who had to give up the life of a girl emerging into young womanhood and become housekeeper for her father as well as foster mother for her brother.

In case you haven't read A Tree Grows in Brooklyn and Tomorrow Will Be Better by Betty Smith, they are in the county library, too

Angus Beef Type Classification To Get Underway in April

The nation's first beef herd type classification program will get underway in April.

Dr. T. J. Marlowe, associate animal husbandman at VPI Agricultural Experiment Salion, who was a member of the 12-man national committee set up to outline the program, says many Virginia Angus breeders are evidencing interest.

Dr. Marlowe explains that classification is not a substitute for performance testing, but is an additional yardstick to help the breeder determine the merit of his cattle. Used along with production records, it can be very useful, Dr. Marlowe believes.

Dairy breed associations have had similar classification programs for several years.

The new beef classification program is being initiated by the American Aberdeen Angus Association, and breeders should address their requests for classification to the Association.

The classification program, which will be strictly voluntary, should serve as a distinct benefit to both the buyer and seller of purebred beef breeding stock. Such a program will help to identify and locate animals with outstanding conformation. It will serve, therefore, as an excellent source of information to guide breeders in selecting breeding stock from superior lines of cattle. The score card for classification, as set up by the committee composed of breeders and animal husbandry scientists, considers general appearance, beef character, and breeding qualities.

A rating will be assigned based on the degree to which the animal approached the ideal type. Each breeding animal will have a uniform, unbiased rating, and as the years pass, the records should provide a check on the progress made in the herd.

Herd classification will not in itself make the cattle better or automatically insure a sound breeding porgram. However, Dr. Marlowe says, it helps establish a goal. If records are used properly they should provide sound guides in selecting herd replacements.

A breeder who uses both performance testing and herd classification will be using tools to help him keep the size of his animals right for economical and profitable production and to safeguard quality and excellence of carcass.

The standard of excellence for type in beef cattle today is show ring winnings. Show ring standards have been a great and good influence, but have failed to identify enough animals, Dr. Marlowe says. Only a small percentage of the beef population ever gets to the show ring, and the show ring evaluates only an animal's individual excellence. Many of the show animals are fitted under unnatural conditions, such as being forced to become excessively fat, which leads to breeding difficulties.

SUMMARY OF 1957 FATAL TRAFFIC CRASHES

Richmond, Va.- Colonel C. W. Woodson, Jr., Superintendent of State Police and Chairman of the Governor's Highway Safety Committee, today revealed the story behind Virginia's 757 fatal traffic crashes which involved 1,039 drivers and took 911 lives during 1957.

Greatest number of fatal crashes was occasioned by cars running off the roadway, which numbered 247 separate occasions. Collisions between motor vehicles was second with 237 fatal accidents. Right of way with railroad trains was fatally disputed 11 times and smashing into fixed objects spelled death on 54 occasions. Two fatal crashes involved attempts to avoid animals. There were 161 pedestrian deaths and 14 involving bicycles. All told, fatal crashes involving but one vehicle, apart from those killing pedestrians or cyclists, ran to 335, which meant death for 401 people. During 1956, there were but 285 of these which took 322 lives.

Rural areas saw 651 of these crashes and 106 occurred in cities. Despite far higher volume of daytime travel, only 341 occurred then. Saturday was the worst day of the week with a total of 175, and 7:00 P. M. to 8:00 P. M. the worst hour with 59.

In 78.6 per cent of the total crashes, a driver was known to have violated a traffic law. In 49.8 per cent, speed was the violation. In 33.0 per cent—and Colonel Woodson emphasized that this was a necessarily conservative ratio—a driver involved was known to have been drinking.

Of the 1,039 drivers involved, 829 were white and 194 negro, with sexes of 14 not stated. Greatest number of drivers in the various age groups was 313 in the 25 - 34 bracket. Holders of Virginia licenses numbered 693 with out-of-state licensees checked at 226. Fifty-seven were Virginians but were not licensed.

In overall comparison with 1956, deaths rose 9.8 per cent (from 830 to 911), mileage traveled 2.9 per cent and the rate of deaths per 100 million miles of travel 6.6 per cent (5.7 to 6.1).

Nationally, deaths were down from 39,628 to 38,426 with the death rate dropping from 6.6 to 5.9.
